Axiom Affiliate Playbook

Oct 17, 2026 · @Anupta — Revised Oct 16, 2026: trainer-first. Pricing tiers showcased; payment, bonus and projection sections added. Contact: inquiries@axiomtraining.io

The 30-second pitch

Axiom's coaching dashboard lets personal trainers coach more clients without losing the detail: it watches the whole roster every day, flags who needs attention and why, drafts the message, and never sends without the trainer pressing send. Trainers keep their rates, their Stripe and their clients; Axiom takes 0% of trainer revenue. Behind every trainer is the Axiom client app your audience already knows: AI coaching that asks before it changes anything, meal logging from a photo, and injury-aware programming.

Three things to say out loud:

1. "It watches your roster and tells you who needs a message and why, then drafts it. You just press send."
2. "Free up to 5 clients. After that it's a flat $49 or $99 a month, and you keep everything but card processing."
3. "The AI never messages your clients. It drafts; you send; every send is logged and undoable."

The coaching dashboard for personal trainers

The dashboard turns one trainer's attention into a roster-wide system: the rules watch every client every day, surface who needs you and why, draft the message, and send nothing until you press send. It runs on the web and in the app. Today it is invite-only: trainers ask the Axiom team for access, and their clients join free with a normal Axiom account.

What the trainer gets	What it does
Roster with status and trend	Every client labelled Might need support, New, On plan, Paused or Not joined, with engagement Rising, Steady or Falling.
Spreadsheet import	Upload the .xlsx or .csv you already keep. Axiom works out the layout, shows what it found, imports nothing until you confirm, and the whole import can be undone. Clients who haven't signed up appear as "Not joined" with their history ready for when you invite them.
Daily briefing	Rule-driven items: mentioned pain, waiting on a reply, a check-in worth a look, no session in N days, engagement dropped, high stress and low energy, a stalled lift, a new PR, missed check-ins. Each item shows its reasons and sources ("Why am I seeing this?").
Check-ins	Weekly or fortnightly, with your own questions (free text, 1 to 5 scale, number). Clients answer from a link. Rules classify each one: any pain

What the trainer gets	What it does
	mention or two red answers is Needs attention; one red or two amber is Worth a look; the rest are Routine, and routine replies can be sent in bulk.
Drafts, not autopilot	The AI only words the suggested message; the claim behind it comes from the rules. Every send is a button you press, with an undo window, and everything is audit-logged. The only scheduled sends are check-in prompts and nudges you turned on.
Ask Anakin (read-only)	"Who mentioned pain in the last 14 days?" answered from the same deterministic queries as the roster. It can draft messages; it cannot send anything. Questions can run every morning.
Unified timeline	Every check-in, session, message, photo and note in one chronological feed per client.
Monthly reports	Sessions logged, adherence, PRs from estimated 1RM, body-weight change, computed by rules. You add a note, approve and send.
Progress	Estimated 1RM trend per lift labelled Progressing, Plateau or Regressing, with adherence.
Contraindications	Deterministic: any pattern that loads an injured body part is refused in the briefing, generated programs and the client's own app until you clear it.
Programs	Program builder, exercise library and "Generate with Axiom" for a first draft of a block.
Bookings	Set weekly availability; clients book open slots themselves; each booking uses a session credit from their package; reminders go out the day before.
Notes and photos	Private practice notes clients never see; progress photos by date and pose.
Business analytics	MRR, retention and revenue per client, computed from your Stripe data.
Your branding	Your logo and colors on everything the client sees.
Leads, retention, team, inbox	A public profile with an enquiry form, a "clients who might need you" view, multiple trainers per practice, one inbox.
Billing	Connect your own Stripe account; clients pay you directly. 0% platform fee: Axiom takes nothing, you pay only Stripe's processing fees.

What the client sees. Their normal Axiom app, with their trainer able to see workouts, check-ins, body weight, program and listed injuries, and to message them. The client is told exactly that when they accept the invite.

Trainer pricing

Three plans. Every plan gets the full dashboard: the only differences are roster size and price. No per-client fees, no add-on maze, no cut of trainer revenue on any plan.

	Free	Coach	Pro
Price	$0	$49/month	$99/month
Clients included	Up to 5	Up to 25	Up to 75
Daily briefing, check-in triage, roster and timeline	Yes	Yes	Yes
Program builder, exercise library, AI program drafts	Yes	Yes	Yes
Ask Anakin, monthly reports, progress tracking	Yes	Yes	Yes
Bookings, business analytics, branding	Yes	Yes	Yes
Own Stripe, 0% platform fee	Yes	Yes	Yes

The core trainer-connected experience costs the client nothing; an optional Axiom Premium ($15/month) unlocks the full consumer app for them.

How to talk about it: "Start free with 5 clients. When you outgrow that, it's a flat $49 or $99 a month. Compare that to per-client tiers and payment fees elsewhere."

Why trainers switch

Trainerize, TrueCoach and Everfit are delivery tools: you build the plan, you read every check-in, you notice who went quiet. Axiom is a watch-and-draft tool: the rules notice, explain why, and hand you a draft. The second difference is money: those platforms charge per-client tiers and take a cut of payments; Axiom charges a flat plan and takes nothing from trainer revenue. Competitor figures are approximate public list prices as of October 2026; verify before quoting.

	Axiom coaching dashboard	Trainerize	TrueCoach	Everfit	Spreadsheets + WhatsApp
Trainer cost	Free up to 5 clients; $49/mo (25 clients); $99/mo (75 clients). Stripe processing only, 0% platform fee	Tiered by client count, roughly $5 to $250+/month	Roughly $20 to $150+/month by clients	Free to a handful of clients, then tiered	Free
Client cost	Free through the trainer, or Axiom Pro $12.99/month,	Included in trainer plan	Included	Included	None

	Axiom coaching dashboard	Trainerize	TrueCoach	Everfit	Spreadsheets + WhatsApp
	or whatever the trainer bundles
Who notices a client slipping	Rules, every day, with reasons	You	You	You, plus auto-messages	Nobody
Pain or injury flagged automatically	Yes, any mention in a check-in; movements refused until cleared	No	No	No	No
Check-in triage	Rules sort Needs attention / Worth a look / Routine	Manual	Manual	Manual	Manual
Message drafting	AI words it from rule-backed facts; you send	Templates	Templates	Templates and automations	You
Bring existing clients	Spreadsheet import, undoable, "Not joined" history	Manual entry or CSV	Manual	CSV	Already there
Client-side AI coach between sessions	Yes, Anakin, confirm-first	No	No	Limited	No
Nutrition logging for clients	Photo, barcode, label, chain menus	Partner integrations	Basic	Macro tracking	None
Billing	Your Stripe, direct charges, 0% platform fee	Built-in payments with fees	Built-in with fees	Built-in with fees	Cash app chaos

	Axiom coaching dashboard	Trainerize	TrueCoach	Everfit	Spreadsheets + WhatsApp
Audit trail	Every send logged; undo window	Partial	Partial	Partial	None

The pitch to a trainer in one breath. "You keep your rates, your Stripe and your clients. Axiom watches the roster for you, tells you who needs a message and why, drafts it, and never sends without you. Free up to 5 clients; flat monthly plans after that, and you keep everything but card processing."

Who it is best for. Online and hybrid coaches with 10 to 100 clients who are drowning in check-ins; strength-focused coaches who care about injury-safe programming; gyms and teams, where institution accounts give coaches a roster of athletes they can message.

What to say about access. It is rolling out by invitation. Trainers apply through the Axiom team; you can refer them directly and the team will reach out.

The money: payment structure, bonuses, and projections

How you earn

Stream	What it pays	For how long
Consumer Pro referrals	40% of every Pro payment ($12.99/mo)	Lifetime of the subscription
Trainer referrals (paid plans)	Commission on every paid trainer invoice, at your agreed trainer rate	12 months per trainer
Campaign / creative asset referrals	30% of the plan price, once per subscriber	One time, on the first paid invoice
Paid content commissions	Per-video fee, set in your agreement	Per accepted video

All streams are paid monthly in CAD to your Stripe Express account. Only web (card) purchases earn commission; Apple and Google in-app purchases are not attributed.

Bonus structure

On top of commission, volume unlocks one-time bonuses. Exact rungs are set in your agreement; the structure works like this:

- Growth ladder: one-time bonuses as your lifetime referred count crosses milestones. Each rung pays once.
- Durability ladder: one-time bonuses for referrals who stick around (measured at a tenure milestone). Rewards bringing people who stay, not just people who sign up.

- Fast-start: a bonus for hitting an early referral target within your first 90 days.

Bonuses never reduce your commission rate. They stack on top.

Revenue projection (illustrative)

Plan values first, so the math is transparent. Your commission is your rate on these numbers.

Per trainer, per year in plan value: Coach ($49/mo) = $588/yr · Pro ($99/mo) = $1,188/yr

Monthly plan value at headcount:

Trainers referred	All on Coach	All on Pro	Mixed 50/50
5	$245/mo	$495/mo	$370/mo
10	$490/mo	$990/mo	$740/mo
25	$1,225/mo	$2,475/mo	$1,850/mo
50	$2,450/mo	$4,950/mo	$3,700/mo

Worked example, illustrated at 40%: 10 trainers on Pro = $990/mo plan value → $396/mo commission, every month for 12 months per trainer = about $4,750 over the year from those ten alone, before bonuses. Your actual trainer rate is in your agreement; multiply accordingly.

Consumer side for comparison: 100 Pro subscribers at 40% = 100 × $12.99 × 40% = $519.60/mo, for life. Trainers pay more per head and their clients subscribe behind them: one good trainer can mean a dozen Pro subscriptions on top of the trainer commission. That is the compounding loop.

These are illustrations, not promises. Trainers churn, downgrade to free, and take time to convert. The projection assumes paying trainers who stay.

The client app, in brief

You know this one. Axiom Pro ($12.99/month, first month free) is the AI coach your audience already uses: it reads training and food logs, proposes program and macro changes as cards you confirm, and every change can be undone. Meal logging from a photo, barcode or 83 chain menus. Injury-aware programming enforced by rules, not vibes. The free tier is a daily taste: one lift diagnostic, one form video and one meal photo per day, no coach chat. Full detail is in the client section of your affiliate dashboard.

	Free	Pro ($12.99/month)
Coach chat with Anakin	No	Yes, up to 200 turns a day
Program generation and adaptive progression	Yes	Yes
Lift diagnostic / form check video / meal photo	1 per day each	Unlimited
Barcode, label, chain menus, recipes	Yes	Yes
Social, friends, messaging, groups	Limited	Yes

	Free	Pro ($12.99/month)
Nutrition plan, gut score, micros	Yes	Yes

Your referral offer. Anyone who signs up through your link gets 20% off Pro for as long as they stay subscribed, plus a 30-day trial. Say it exactly like that; do not call it "20% off the first month".

How attribution works. Your link is https://axiomtraining.io?ref=YOURCODE. The code is saved in the visitor's browser and recorded on their account when they sign up; it can also be entered at web checkout. There is no time limit, but the code recorded with the account wins, so send people to the website, not the App Store.

Trainers you refer. Trainers on paid plans (Coach, Pro) earn you commission at the trainer rate in your agreement; the free trainer plan earns nothing. Send trainers to axiomtraining.io and tell the Axiom team who you referred; access is by invitation.

Talking points, objections, and what not to claim

Lead with what you can show on screen: a proposal card with its reasoning and the undo button, a meal logged from a Tim Hortons menu, a form score with a timestamped cue. Demos beat adjectives.

Objections you will hear

They say	You say
Trainer: "Another platform fee?"	"No per-client fees and no cut of your revenue. It's a flat plan: free up to 5 clients, then $49 or $99 a month. You connect your own Stripe and keep everything but card processing."
Trainer: "I don't want AI messaging my clients."	"It never does. It drafts; you send; every send is logged and undoable. The only automatic messages are check-in prompts you schedule."
"AI coaches just make stuff up."	"Axiom's coach proposes, you confirm, and you can undo. Injuries are enforced by rules, not by the model. Calorie targets have a hard floor."
"I already log in Hevy/Strong."	"Keep logging; paste your notes or backfill past workouts and Axiom starts adapting from day one. Logging apps don't coach."
"I'd rather have a human coach."	"Then use Axiom with a trainer: trainers coach through the dashboard and you still get the app. Human-coach apps start around $150 a month."

Do not claim. These are either untrue, unproven, or legally risky, and the Axiom site itself has removed them:

- Any outcome numbers ("+24 lb bench in 12 weeks", "87% break plateaus", star ratings). There is no published study.
- "Trained on NASM, ISSA, ACE" or "7,000 pages of research". Say "built on established strength and nutrition science".

- Endorsements by Andrew Huberman or any certification body. Axiom is not affiliated with the Huberman Lab podcast.
- Medical outcomes: Axiom is not medical advice and does not treat injuries. It flags and refers.
- Android availability, wearable sync or a human coach for consumers.
- Guaranteed earnings for trainers or guaranteed results for anyone.

Tone. First person, specific, honest about limits. "I use it because it asks before it changes my program" converts better than any feature list.

Your affiliate toolkit

You earn 40% of every consumer payment your referrals make, for as long as they stay subscribed; trainer commissions are paid at your agreed trainer rate. Everything is paid monthly in CAD to your Stripe Express account. The rules below keep that income safe for you and for Axiom.

Links to share

- Your referral link: https://axiomtraining.io?ref=YOURCODE (from your affiliate dashboard). Always the website, never a store link.
- Pricing: axiomtraining.io/pricing
- Trainers: send them to axiomtraining.io and tell the Axiom team who you referred; access is by invitation.
- iOS app: App Store listing (install after signing up on the web).
- Policies you can point people to: Privacy, Terms, Consumer Health Data Privacy Policy, Affiliate Terms.

Disclosure is required, every time. US FTC rules (16 CFR Part 255) and the Affiliate Terms require you to say you are paid, in the post itself, before the link, in plain words: "#ad: paid partnership with Axiom" or "I earn a commission if you subscribe through my link." A hashtag buried in a wall of tags does not count. Say it in video out loud and on screen.

How you get paid

1. A referral signs up on the web with your code and upgrades to Pro by card, or a trainer subscribes to a paid plan through your link.
2. Their trial ends and the first paid invoice posts; Axiom records your commission. Renewals repeat this every month (trainer commissions run 12 months per trainer).
3. On the 1st of each month, pending commissions are paid out to your Stripe Express account in CAD. Commissions earned before you finish Stripe onboarding are held for up to 12 months.
4. Your dashboard shows pending earnings, paid-out totals, active referrals and payout history. It never shows referral names, emails or health data.

Rules of the road

- You must be 18 or older and active in the program; inactive affiliates accrue nothing.
- No paid search on the Axiom name, no coupon-site listings, no spam, no claims from the "Do not claim" list.
- Axiom gives 30 days' notice before changing commission rates.

- Questions: reply in your affiliate dashboard or email inquiries@axiomtraining.io.